In May 2021, "TechCrunch" reported that Tencent Holdings Ltd had acquired a majority stake in Musical.ly Inc. "TechCrunch" stated that the deal valued Musical.ly at $700 million with Tencent acquiring a 33.3% stake. The deal allowed Tencent to expand its music business and compete against Chinese rival QQ Music. The acquisition also helped Musical.ly avoid the regulation of "obscene content" in China, according to TechCrunch, which had previously been criticized by the country's government for allowing such content on its app. The acquisition was announced in August 2021 and closed later that year. According to an article published by "TechCrunch", "Tencent has long seen value in Musical.ly's teen and millennial user base, which has been tapped to promote various products".", TikTok may be missing features such as a video editor, and its data intensive nature may make it difficult for the app to gain traction in markets where data usage is increasingly expensive. It also remains to be seen if the app can retain its popularity with teenagers.",

In February 2021, it was revealed that TikTok had reached a deal with Chinese search engine Baidu to launch a new feature called "Selfie Scoring". The photo filter feature is activated by users pressing the "Camera" button on their app which takes a selfie photo and gives immediate feedback for the degree of fidelity to the typical ideal body ideal presented by research studies while also using facial recognition technology to rate how well or poorly they met this criteria. These ratings are accompanied by a star rating on the app's interface itself and can be seen through each user's account page on TikTok's website.",

On February 16, 2021, Musical.ly filed another lawsuit in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York against Snapchat as well as its parent company Snap Inc., alleging that these companies had falsely claimed in advertising materials that they had no similar patents-related claims against AppsFlyer Technologies (which provides analytics services for app developers). In this lawsuit, Musical.ly claimed that Snapchat had infringed on four patents including US Patent Nos. 8,426,604 and 9,446,633 from a 2021 patent application by AppsFlyer Technologies for real-time engagement analytics for mobile applications; it also claimed that Snapchat had violated US Patent Nos. 6,192,977 and 8,526,721 which AppsFlyer had assigned to Snapchat in 2021. In addition to compensation for damages from these related claims, Musical.ly sought injunctive relief requiring Snapchat and Snap Inc. to withdraw its advertising materials.",

The criticism of TikTok from a lot of users is not surprising because this platform has been accused of violating its users' privacy in the past. A news article published by a German news outlet noted that "TikTok is no longer just a fun app for teenagers, but rather an attack tool aimed at the private lives and personal data of young people. The American app is the latest in a series of digital platforms to become notorious for breaches of privacy." The article continued to state that "The cross-platform app just received 10 million at-risk accounts. But this data is second-hand, because Snapchat does not make clear whether the images that appear on its platform are real or not." One of the biggest concerns with TikTok is that it allows users to upload sensitive personal information such as videos which include images of people who may be minors. In addition, if a user's account gets hacked, there is no way for them to know if their account has been used against them in a manner which causes harm or embarrassment. In addition, the app does not make clear to its users which videos are older than 24 hours or indicate that their account has been hacked. A lot of people have also expressed concerns about the fact that they do not know what data is collected and what it is used for by the app and that their privacy could potentially be at risk if they do not understand how to use this app as well as what data is being collected from them",
