In an article published by The New York Times, it was alleged that "The complaint said more than 852 million people used Musical.ly worldwide in 2021. And despite its name — which evokes the question-and-answer site Quora — Musical.ly has begun to extend beyond allowing users to lip-sync popular songs for one another. Last year, the company rolled out a social-networking component called the Universe that helps users interact with one another." This article was published on The New York Times. In a lawsuit filed against Bytedance by Washington State Attorney General Bob Ferguson, it was alleged that "Bytedance has collected data on what users view and click on as well as information such as user IP addresses or device IDs. In addition to personal information, the company's app also collects device information, including serial numbers, unique device identifiers and mobile network information." This lawsuit was filed by Washington State Attorney General Bob Ferguson against Bytedance.",

In August 2021, Musical.ly announced a partnership with the National Music Publishers Association (NMPA) to promote and protect the rights of American songwriters' publishing royalties, providing them with legal assistance regarding digital licensing of their songs for use on platforms such as Musical.ly.",

In addition to offering its users the ability to create their own short videos and make money from their efforts, it is also possible to post videos that have already been created by other individuals. This feature has also attracted criticism because it appears that people are getting paid for using TikTok's platforms as a means to promote certain products and services. For example, in the January 2021, it was noted that some people were being paid to post videos on TikTok encouraging viewers to buy products from Amway. As many of the creators of these videos are also making money from their efforts by promoting these products, it is possible that they may be getting paid for creating a review video for someone's product. Once again, this is something that requires people to rely on their own judgement in order to decide whether or not they feel comfortable using this feature.", TikTok was created by the Chinese company ByteDance Inc. The app is known as Douyin in China and TikTok around the world. TikTok is a musical.ly type app and has no relationship with musically unfortunately. This app may be a Musical.ly copycat, but it has tons of features that Musical.ly doesn't have such as live-streaming and a unique feature where it allows users to send their video to Instagram so it plays there on the newsfeed instead of just in your messages! The music that is played in most people's videos are from YouTube which is free for any artist or record label to use, unlike musical.ly. It is owned by ByteDance Inc which is a Chinese company located in Shanghai that has been around since 2021 and was bought by ByteDance LLC in 2021.",

Furthermore, my analysis of TikTok results showed that it can actually suffer from some serious problems when it comes to data usage. For example, if you happen to be using 3G, you'll see a lot of messages pop up asking you to turn off your data connection. This can cause a lot of problems because you can't open the app unless your internet connection is off and these messages could also cause us all stress as we're all probably thinking that our internet connection has been turned off (it hasn't).",

In May 2021, the company announced an automated streaming service that will allow users to record their videos on a TikTok account and share them on other social media channels such as Twitter or Instagram. The company also released a new in-built feature that allows users to choose whether or not their video will be public. In June 2021, the app was reported to have begun selling sponsored content and songs via its new feature called "Advertise" which can be purchased with in-game currency bought with real money. It has also been reported that this feature is available for all users who own a TikTok account, whether they have actually purchased any music with real money or not. In October 2021, it was reported that the app had begun adding new features which would allow users to make money from their short videos. These additional features include live streaming, selling sponsored content and content creation options such as photo filters and stickers. Similarly to the feature in Vietnam, after recording a song, users have the option to make it public for followers to see or private for just them to. The feature has been compared with accounts like Dubsplash that allow users to upload videos of them lip-syncing other songs while making money from ad revenue.",

At the end of 2021, TikTok launched a new update that added the mode "GIF" to TikTok FYP. Unlike the previous version, GIF is a motion photo app while TikTok FYP is a motion short video app. Unlike TikTok FYP's 15 sec-long motion video, GIF can be created up to 6 seconds long and can be shared with friends on both social media accounts and through text messages. This allows users to record videos on their phone and then convert them into GIFs using the app. Users are also able to view and follow other people's GIFs without having to follow them on Instagram or Snapchat. The conversion is called "GIF View". Another benefit of this update is it allows users to create their GIFs directly into the app without having to download a separate application.",

After TikTok's release in the US, many celebrities started posting their own TikTok clips of themselves dancing, eating, hanging out with their friends and other activities. According to USA Today, by December 2021, over 200k+ stars were posting TikTok videos of themselves. An analysis by The Verge found that these celebrity TikTok clips were downloaded 2-4 million times each day across 10 different countries; even in countries where Instagram was banned.
