The app shares data with third parties including Yahoo, Facebook, Twitter and Google if it is available through the users' social media accounts that they use to sign in to TikTok. These partnerships allow users to share content on other social media channels such as Instagram or Facebook without having to leave the TikTok app itself.",

In addition to their concerns about the business practices of TikTok, critics have also expressed concern over the reliability of some of these posts by some users. Some people have noted that some of the videos which are shared on TikTok (such as videos that appear to be self-made) are actually recorded and uploaded by other people. It is even possible that a fake account could be set up where someone uses a photo of an actual user they targeted for harassment in order to impersonate them on TikTok. People have also noted that a lot of the content on TikTok is fake. In addition, they also note that many of the people who are able to post videos (which require a subscription) have accounts which they use to create spam videos in order to attract more subscribers.",
