ROBLOX runs a no-sell policy that allows for players to earn "robustokens" or Robux. These tokens can be used to both purchase games, games from other users, and in-game items. It also serves as a way to gain currency for in-game purchases such as buying more slots, which helps players advance faster in the game.

ROBLOX has also been criticised for its lack of badge incentives for participating in games, or even logging into the site at all. ROBLOX models these badges and credit prizes after the badges found in games like Journey, where a lot of doing nothing gives you a lot of money, which is possibly a reason some players don't log in. ROBLOX also has very few quests to complete that reward badges/credits.

The game has a number of features that help users to create their own games. Users can mine for materials in the sandbox and use them in their own games, or they can buy materials from other users in the Marketplace. The menu includes a number of categories, such as Buildings, Boxes, Characters and Game Objects. Users can tick these categories and use the menu to search for whatever they need.

On December 15th, 2018, ROBLOX announced the end of the open beta for their new trading system. The company removed the ability to trade in-game currency among users and limited users' ability to purchase system currency from outside sources while adding even more security features by requiring cards or other forms of identification before buying virtual currency. The reason for the change was to prevent users from spending too much virtual currency on outside purchases of no value to the user. The system was a success, reducing the rate of fraud.[25]

One of ROBLOX's main rivals is Tencent, a Chinese company. The two companies even share employees and developers, including the current admin. ROBLOX as well as Tencent are often compared to each other due to their similarities.
