I really liked playing my own games because it was fun to design a new world for my friends and myself. In my game I could make up anything I wanted. I could add trains, people, animals and pretty much anything else you can think of. I also liked making my own avatar because it gives me a lot of choices in making the way they look. Another thing I was really interested in was Roblox role play which is basically acting like someone else for a little while. You can choose one of your friends or even make up a new person and act like them until you want to stop again. This is good for kids because they get to learn how to act like they're someone else. It's also good for when they have to act in school and it can teach them a lot of things.

ROBLOX also allows people to manipulate the games in an unfair way; they can do this by changing the difficulty level of a game or removing potential players from playing a game. They also can sell cheat codes on their website. This is similar to the "scams" created by advertisers in that they are selling cheats for an unfairly high price (such as $2.50 USD) so that only people who pay will be able to use the code to cheat or hack the game. However, this is an unfair way of making money.

In early October 2008, ROBLOX launched a blog that discusses game design techniques, new features and events in detail. This blog is updated regularly with posts from the ROBLOX development team as well as occasional guest posts from other entities such as users and other game developers.[41] In late November 2010, ROBLOX launched a forum with Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) regarding common problems that users face when using ROBLOX Studio.[42]

For example, Jailbreak offers a premium feature which allows players to purchase more life points. As the game is free, there is no way for them to gain XP in the traditional sense. Instead of implementing XP via cash or coin drop-rates (as would be done in a game that relies on premium features), they offer more life points as a way to make it easier for players if they choose to purchase them. Free games also don't have an option of offering premium features that modify their economies or XP systems. Therefore, they usually offer only the default system as an option for non-Premium members.

As a result of these allegations, another employee named Kent Duryee filed a lawsuit against Roblox in March 2018. Duryee claims that he was also wrongfully fired by Roblox after attempting to report misconduct at work earlier in 2017 but nothing was ever done about it. The lawsuit, which is currently still ongoing, is asking for $5 million in damages and $1 million in lost wages.
